Hello,

I'm a student at ALGOSUP, a French computer science school, and we're currently working on a project to recreate a Pac-Man game in Assembler and with a computer emulator from the 80s.

Under French law, it's allowed to use the game's name and characters for school purposes, provided that the integrity of the game and its creator is preserved (Article L121-1 and Article L122-5 12° from the "Code de la propriété intellectuelle"). But my project team wanted to ask you for official authorization to carry out this project.

I look forward to your reply and wish you good luck.
Kind regards.

Hello Grégory,

Thank you for reaching out to us. I am contacting you regarding the usage of Bandai Namco content in your personal projects.

Before anything else, I'd like to say that I'm happy for your interest in our products and games!

Regretfully, Bandai Namco cannot give you permission to use our products in your projects, nor are we in a position to provide legal opinion or advice on whether a particular use case is justified or not. It is your sole responsibility to make sure that whatever you're doing falls within the relevant legal framework.

I hope I was able to shed some light on this matter. On this note, may you have a lovely day and stay safe!

If you have any other questions, please do not hesitate to contact us. Our team is always at your disposal.

Best Regards,

PS : you can reply directly to this email to continue our conversation.
